SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Federal law places certain obligations on housing providers under the Fair Housing Act (FHA), Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Section 504), and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), relating to assistance animals.

The FHA prohibits disability discrimination in both private and public housing access, with limited exceptions, while Section 504 prohibits disability discrimination by any housing provider receiving federal financial assistance. Both the FHA and Section 504 require a housing provider to make a reasonable accommodation for an assistance animal, which includes an:

- Animal that works, provides assistance, or performs tasks; or
- Emotional support animal (ESA).

The ADA prohibits disability discrimination in state and local government facilities and public accommodations and requires such entities to make necessary modifications for a person with a disability, including accommodating a service animal. The ADA narrowly defines service animal as a dog trained to do work or perform tasks benefitting a person with a disability. An ESA is not a service animal.

Florida law mirrors federal requirements for service animals in public accommodations and requires equal access to housing accommodations for an individual with a service animal, but does not provide guidelines for other assistance animals, such as an ESA. As such, a housing provider complying with Florida law by accommodating only service animals may be violating federal law relating to ESAs.

CS/HB 209 amends Florida's Fair Housing Act by prohibiting discrimination in housing rental to an individual needing an ESA. The bill defines ESA, requires a housing provider to offer equal access to a person with an ESA, and prohibits additional fees for an ESA. The bill permits a landlord to:

- Prohibit an ESA under certain circumstances; and
- Request additional information regarding an ESA, including written documentation:
 - From a listed type of licensed health care practitioner;
 - Verifying the applicant has a disability or disability-related need; and
 - Verifying the ESA provides support alleviating one or more symptoms or effects of the disability or disability-related need.

The bill requires the Department of Health (DOH) to establish the format for and adopt rules relating to ESA documentation.

The bill creates the misdemeanor crime of falsifying documentation or otherwise misrepresenting information relating to using or being qualified to use an ESA. The bill removes liability for damage done by an ESA for a landlord complying with ESA guidelines and requesting appropriate ESA documentation.

The bill may have an indeterminate positive impact on jail beds.

The bill provides an effective date of July 1, 2020.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

Federal law places certain obligations on housing providers under the Fair Housing Act (FHA), Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Section 504), and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), relating to assistance animals.

FHA and Section 504

The FHA and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD)¹ implementing regulations prohibit discrimination in housing access based on a person's disability, and applies to most housing types, with limited exceptions.² Section 504 prohibits disability discrimination by housing providers receiving federal financial assistance from HUD. Both the FHA and Section 504 require a covered housing provider to make reasonable accommodations for assistance animals.

Assistance Animals

According to HUD, an assistance animal is not a pet, it is an animal that:

- Works;
- Provides assistance;
- Performs tasks; or
- Provides emotional support alleviating one or more identified symptoms or effects of a disability.³

A dog is the most common type of assistance animal, but there appears to be no limit to the type of animal that may qualify as an assistance animal, so long as the animal lessens the symptoms of the person's disability.⁴ An assistance animal does not require any training or certification, and may perform a variety of disability-related functions, such as:

- Guiding a person who has low vision or is blind;
- Alerting a deaf or hard of hearing person to sounds;
- Protection or rescue assistance;
- Pulling a wheelchair;
- Retrieving items;
- Alerting a person to an impending seizure; or
- Being an emotional support animal (ESA) to a person with a disability who has a disability-related need for such support.⁵
 - ESAs provide therapeutic support to relieve symptoms of psychiatric disabilities, including depression, anxiety, and post-traumatic stress disorder.⁶

Reasonable Accommodations

A reasonable accommodation request under the FHA or Section 504 covers the following individuals with a disability-related need:

- A Tenant;
- An applicant;
- A family member; and
- Any other person associated with a tenant or applicant.⁷

A housing provider must evaluate a reasonable accommodation request relating to a covered individual's request for an assistance animal in the same manner as any other reasonable accommodation request, and must consider whether the requesting person has a:

- Disability – a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities; and
- Disability-related need for the assistance animal.⁸

If the answer to either consideration is no, then neither the FHA nor Section 504 require a housing provider to modify any pet-related policy, and the request may be denied. If the answer to both considerations is yes, both the FHA and Section 504 require a housing provider to modify any pet-related rules in any way necessary to allow the requesting person to use his or her assistance animal in all areas where other tenants are permitted to go, unless an accommodation for the animal in question would:

- Result in an undue financial and administrative burden;
- Fundamentally alter the housing provider's services;
- Pose a direct threat to the health or safety of others that cannot be reduced or eliminated by another reasonable accommodation; or
- Cause substantial physical damage to the property of others that cannot be reduced or eliminated by another reasonable accommodation.⁹

A housing provider evaluating a reasonable accommodation request for an assistance animal may not inquire about the existence, nature, or extent of a disability or disability-related need if the disability and disability-related need are readily apparent or already known to the provider.¹⁰ However, a housing provider may request reliable documentation of a person's disability and/or disability-related need if either is not readily apparent or known to the housing provider. For example, a person seeking a reasonable accommodation for an ESA may be asked to provide documentation from a:

- Physician;
- Psychiatrist;
- Social worker; or
- Other mental health professional.¹¹

Once a reasonable accommodation request for an assistance animal is individually evaluated, the request may not be:

⁸ A disability-related need means that the animal works, provides assistance, performs tasks or services, or provides emotional support alleviating one of more identified symptoms or effects of the person's existing disability. U.S. Department of Housing, FHEO Notice supra note 3.

⁹ Determining whether an assistance animal poses a direct threat of harm or would cause substantial physical damage to the property of others must be based on an individualized assessment of the animal, relying on objective evidence about the specific animal's actual conduct, not on speculation or fear about the type of harm or damage an animal may cause or evidence about harm or damage that other animals have caused. Id.

¹⁰ For example, a provider may not request documentation regarding a guide dog from a person who is blind or has limited vision. Id.

¹¹ Documentation is acceptable if it sufficiently establishes that an individual has a disability and the animal will provide some type of disability-related assistance or emotional support, and the provider may not request medical records or any other detailed information regarding a person's physical or mental impairments. Id.

- Unreasonably delayed.

ADA

In addition to the obligations under the FHA and Section 504, a housing provider may also need to comply with a separate set of obligations under the ADA.¹³ The ADA prohibits discrimination in public accommodations based on disability. The ADA provides similar protection to a disabled person as the protections provided to a person based on his or her race, color, sex, national origin, age, and religion. The ADA contains five sections known as “titles,” each relating to a different area of public life:

- Title I – Employment;
- Title II – State and Local Government;
- Title III – Public Accommodations;¹⁴
- Title IV – Telecommunications; and
- Title V – Miscellaneous Provisions.

In the housing context:

- Title II applies to:
 - Public entities providing housing, such as:
 - Public housing agencies; and
 - Housing provided by state and local government, including housing at state universities and other educational facilities.
- Title III applies to:
 - Public accommodations, such as:
 - Rental offices;
 - Shelters;
 - Some types of multifamily housing;
 - Assisted living facilities; and
 - Housing at public education institutions.

A business or entity falling under Title II or Title III, must make reasonable modifications to its policies, practices, and procedures when serving a person with a disability, including a reasonable modification necessary to accommodate a service animal.¹⁵

Service Animals

The ADA defines a service animal narrowly as a dog trained to do work or perform tasks benefitting a person with a disability, including a physical, sensory, psychiatric, intellectual, or other mental disability.¹⁶ A service dog is not considered a pet, and other species of animals may not be service animals, except an entity must provide reasonable accommodations or policy modifications to allow a disabled person to use a miniature horse¹⁷ if the horse is trained to do work or perform tasks for a disabled person. The ADA specifically excludes ESAs from qualifying as a service animal.¹⁸ Common tasks a service animal may perform include:

¹² A housing provider may require a tenant to cover costs of any repairs for damage the animal causes to a dwelling unit or common area, with the exception of reasonable wear and tear, if the provider's common practice is to assess tenants for damage they cause to the premises. ¹⁷ A public accommodation may use certain assessment factors to determine if reasonable modifications may be made to allow a miniature horse (horse) into a facility, including: The type, size, and weight of the horse relative to the facility's ability to accommodate these features, whether the horse's handler is able to sufficiently control the horse, whether the horse is housebroken, and whether the horse's presence in the facility compromises legitimate safety requirements; 28 C.F.R. §§ 35.136(i) and 36.302(c)(9).

- Pulling a wheelchair;
- Retrieving dropped items;
- Alerting a person to a sound;
- Reminding a person to take medication; or
- Pressing an elevator button.¹⁹

Examples of animals meeting the ADA's definition of service animal, include a:

- Guide dog trained to serve a visually impaired person;
- Hearing or signal dog trained to alert a hearing impaired person;
- Psychiatric service dog trained to detect and lessen the effect of a psychiatric episode;
- Sensory signal dog trained to assist an autistic person; and
- Seizure response dog trained to assist a person with a seizure disorder.²⁰

The ADA's definition of service animal covers any state or local government program, service, activity, or facility, and also public accommodations, such as:

- Leasing offices;
- Social service center establishments;
- Universities; and
- Other educational facilities.²¹

If an individual's disability and his or her service animal's work or tasks are not obvious, a covered public accommodation may only ask:

- If the dog is a service animal the person requires because of a disability; and
- What work or tasks the animal is trained to perform.

A public accommodation may not request documentation or proof showing an animal is certified, trained, or licensed as a service animal, nor may the entity request an access fee or surcharge to accommodate a service animal.²² A service animal is exempt from any local law prohibiting a certain dog breed.²³

Because the ADA expressly excludes ESAs, access to or reasonable modifications in public accommodations is not required for ESAs under the ADA. However, access to an ADA-covered facility may not be denied to a service animal, and the animal must be allowed in all areas where member of the public may normally be present, unless the animal is:

- Out of control and its handler does not take effective action to control it;
- Not housebroken; or
- Poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others that cannot be eliminated or reduced to an acceptable level by a reasonable modification to other policies, practices, and procedures.^{24 25}

Applying FHA, Section 504, and ADA Laws

While the FHA, Section 504, and ADA laws each apply to different types of housing, certain entities are covered by both the ADA service animal requirements and the FHA and Section 504 reasonable accommodation requirements for assistance animals, including ESAs, such as:

- Public housing agencies;
- Some public accommodations:

¹⁸ The ADA specifies that "emotional support, well-being, comfort, or companionship do not constitute work or tasks." 28 C.F.R. §§ 35.104 and 36.104.

²⁵ 28 C.F.R. § 35.136; 28 C.F.R. § 36.302(e).

- Rental offices;
- Shelters;
- Residential homes;
- Some multi-family housing;
- Assisted living facilities; and
- Educational facility housing.²⁶

Because compliance with FHA and Section 504 requirements does not guarantee compliance with the ADA, an entity covered by both requirements must ensure compliance with all relevant laws. This is especially relevant when dealing with ESAs, because an ESA that does not qualify as a service animal under the ADA may nevertheless qualify for a reasonable accommodation as an assistance animal under the FHA and Section 504.

When all three laws apply, HUD recommends a housing provider start by first applying the ADA service animal test, because if the animal qualifies as a service animal, it must be permitted to accompany the individual, absent the three limitations outlined above. However, a public entity or public accommodation operating a housing facility may not use the ADA definition of service animal to reduce the obligations required under the FHA and Section 504.²⁷ If the animal does not meet the ADA service animal test, then a housing provider should evaluate the request in accordance with the FHA and Section 504 guidelines, including requesting reasonable documentation regarding a person's disability or disability-related need for an assistance animal, when appropriate.²⁸ However, HUD is clear it is the housing provider's responsibility to know the applicable laws and comply with each of them.²⁹

Florida Law

Under Florida's Fair Housing Act,³⁰ a person may not discriminate³¹ in any manner during the sale or rental of a dwelling³² based on the handicap of a:

- Buyer or renter;
- Person residing in or intending to reside in the dwelling; or
- Any person associated with the buyer or renter.³³

A handicap means a person has a:

- Physical or mental impairment substantially limiting one or more major life activities;
- Record of having or is regarded as having a physical or mental impairment substantially limiting one or more major life activities; or
- Developmental disability.³⁴

While Florida's Fair Housing Act does not specifically address service animals or assistance animals, s. 413.08, F.S., lists the rights and responsibilities of a person with a disability relating to:

- Using a service animal;
- Discrimination in public employment;
- Public accommodations; and
- Housing accommodations.

Section 413.08, F.S., mirrors the federal ADA requirements relating to service animals and does not address rights relating to ESAs or other assistance animals, but acknowledges they exist under other laws.³⁵

Service Animals

Florida defines a service animal similarly to the ADA and provides comparable requirements and restrictions regarding access to public accommodations with a service animal.³⁶ A person knowingly and willfully misrepresenting himself or herself as being qualified to use a service animal commits a second degree misdemeanor, punishable by up to 60 days in county jail and a $500 fine.³⁷

Florida's housing accommodation requirements dictate that a:

- Housing provider must offer a person with a disability the same access to housing as a person not having a disability,³⁸ except a person having a disability may reside with a service animal in a location which may not normally permit pets and may not be charged an additional fee relating to a service animal;³⁹
- Disabled person is liable for any damage done to the housing accommodation or to another person on the premises by his or her service animal; and
- Housing accommodation may request proof a service animal complies with vaccination requirements.⁴⁰

Florida courts have held that an accommodation is unreasonable if it:

- Poses an undue financial and administrative burden on a housing provider; or
- Fundamentally alters the nature of the housing provider's operations.⁴¹

Section 413.08, F.S., expressly prohibits any interpretation of Florida's disability-related housing laws which would limit the rights or remedies available under federal law.⁴² However, because Florida law does not address ESAs or other assistance animals, a housing provider complying with Florida law by accommodating only service animals may be violating federal law relating to ESAs. As a result, courts have found some housing providers in violation of federal law despite the providers' compliance with Florida law.⁴³ In addition to legal confusion, a lack of guidance relating specifically to ESAs has resulted

Effect of Proposed Changes

HB 209 amends Florida's Fair Housing Act by prohibiting discrimination in housing rental to an individual with a disability needing an ESA. The bill defines an ESA as an animal that does not require training to perform specific work or perform special tasks for a person with a disability, but by virtue of its presence provides support to alleviate one or more identified symptoms or effects of a person's disability.

The bill requires a housing provider to offer equal access to a person with an ESA, and prohibits additional fees for an ESA. The bill permits a landlord to:

- Prohibit an ESA if it poses a direct threat to the safety, health or property of others; and
- Request additional information regarding an ESA when a person's disability or disability-related need is not readily apparent, including written documentation:
 - From a listed type of licensed health care practitioner;
 - Excluding any practitioner hired exclusively to provide such documentation.
 - Verifying applicant has a disability or disability-related need; and
 - Verifying the ESA provides support alleviating one or more symptoms or effects of a disability or disability-related need.

The bill requires the Department of Health to establish the format a health care practitioner must follow when providing ESA documentation to a patient and requires DOH to adopt rules relating to ESA documentation requirements.

The bill creates the misdemeanor crime of falsifying documentation or otherwise misrepresenting information relating to using or being qualified to use an emotional support animal.

The bill makes an ESA's owner liable for any damages caused by his or her ESA and removes landlord liability for damage done by an ESA if the landlord approved a person's request for an ESA, and if a person's disability or disability-related need was not readily apparent, the landlord requested the appropriate written documentation verifying the disability-related need for the animal. The bill expressly indicates that the guidelines for ESAs do not apply to service animals.

The bill replaces all references to "handicap" under the Fair Housing Act and related statutes with "disability."

The bill seeks to provide guidance to tenants and housing providers regarding the requirements and responsibilities associated with owning and accommodating ESAs.

The bill provides an effective date of July 1, 2020.

II. FISCAL ANALYSIS & ECONOMIC IMPACT STATEMENT

A. FISCAL IMPACT ON STATE GOVERNMENT:

1. Revenues:

None.

2. Expenditures:

None.

B. FISCAL IMPACT ON LOCAL GOVERNMENTS:

1. Revenues:

None.

2. Expenditures:

The bill may have an indeterminate positive impact on the number of jail beds by creating a new misdemeanor offense for falsifying documentation or otherwise misrepresenting information relating to using or being qualified to use an emotional support animal.

C. DIRECT ECONOMIC IMPACT ON PRIVATE SECTOR:

None.

D. FISCAL COMMENTS:

None.

III. COMMENTS

A. CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES:

1. Applicability of Municipality/County Mandates Provision:

Not Applicable. The bill does not appear to affect county or municipal governments.

2. Other:

The Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution provides no state shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. The Fourteenth Amendment prevents unreasonable discrimination based on the use of classification, thereby preventing laws which draw distinctions between individual classes based solely on differences that do not relate to a legitimate governmental objective.

The bill gives a housing provider discretion to require certain information regarding a person's disability and/or disability-related need for an animal if and when he or she chooses, in a manner that may be interpreted by a court to indicate the housing provider's preference for one type of disability over another, if the landlord does not treat all disabilities in the same manner.

The bill may also be interpreted by a court to limit the federal protections provided to a person with a disability seeking a reasonable accommodation for an assistance animal.

B. RULE-MAKING AUTHORITY:

The bill requires DOH to adopt rules relating to administering ESA documentation requirements.

C. DRAFTING ISSUES OR OTHER COMMENTS:

None.

IV. AMENDMENTS/ COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES

On November 14, 2019, the Civil Justice Subcommittee adopted an amendment and reported the bill favorably as a committee substitute. The amendment:

- Requires a landlord to allow a person with a disability to keep an emotional support animal, if the person requests and receive approval from a landlord;
- Requires DOH to adopt rules relating to the format of a health care practitioner's written documentation regarding an emotional support animal; and
- Removes landlord liability for damage done by an ESA if the landlord approved a person's request for an ESA, and if a person's disability or disability-related need was not readily apparent, the landlord requested the appropriate written documentation verifying the disability-related need for the animal.

This analysis is drafted to the committee substitute as passed by the Civil Justice Subcommittee.
